PROFILE

I am an IT professional who has worked in the business since leaving school in 1970. I have a wealth of experience in developing a range of solutions for commercial organisations, both large and small, with a demonstrable track record in analysis, development and implementation of high quality and reliable applications. I trade as Portack Computers Ltd. and am now looking for contracts or projects in the southwest of England. I am happy to work either on a client site as part of a team or from home, producing software to an agreed specification and delivery date on a fixed price basis. Although my commercial experience is all in VB.Net, I am developing internal software using C# and am happy using either language.
